Online Catalogue of Livingstone's Letters Released (11 December 2007)

Our latest release is the publication of a browseable and searchable catalogue of Livingstone's writings. This Catalogue has been fundamental to the work of Livingstone Online. The indispensable resources for locating David Livingstone's correspondence are the excellent catalogues produced by G.W. Clendennen and I.C. Cunningham (G.W. Clendennen and I.C. Cunningham, David Livingstone: a catalogue of documents (Edinburgh: National Library of Scotland, 1979) and I.C. Cunningham, David Livingstone: a catalogue of documents: a supplement (Edinburgh: National Library of Scotland, 1985). These works are still available in print from the National Library of Scotland but are unknown to many libraries. Our new online version of the catalogue combines the letters section of the original catalogue and that of the supplement. A tiny number of corrections have been made and letters discovered since 1985 have also been added.

The team at Livingstone Online are most grateful to the authors of these valuable printed catalogues and for their permission and that of the National Library of Scotland to publish them in this form online. Particular thanks should be made to Gary Li who joined the Livingstone online team this year and was responsible for the immense task of exporting the paper copy to our new enhanced online version.
