Livingstone Online is back in operation

Livingstone Online is now back in operation under the joint leadership of Christopher Lawrence and Adrian S. Wisnicki. We are busy updating the site and will be publishing a variety of new transcriptions over the coming months as we prepare for the Livingstone bicentenary in 2013. We are delighted to welcome Heather F. Ball, Kate Simpson, A.J. Schmitz, and Jared McDonald, all of whom have recently joined our staff as research assistants.

About Me

Livingstone Online

Livingstone Online is an ongoing project that provides access to the manuscripts of the missionary, doctor and African explorer David Livingstone (1813-1873). We currently offer images and detailed transcriptions of many of Livingstone's letters, and we aim to make all of his manuscripts - including his diaries and journals - freely available online. We also run a transatlantic collaboration to apply spectral imaging and processing to restore a series of faded, illegible texts produced by Livingstone during his last travels (1866-1873).
